PREFACE

THE following work has been edited from the only two MSS. in which, so far as I am aware, it has come down to us.

The first and more ancient of these is to be found in Rawlinson B. 512, a well-known and often described codex of the Bodleian Library. It begins at the top of fo. 45 a 1 and ends abruptly and imperfectly on fo. 51 b 1, where it is immediately followed by a poem¹ on the maledictive psalms selected by Adamnan. This copy, which I call R, forms part of a separate layer of eleven sheets of thick vellum from fo. 31-52, and seems to me to have been written in the fifteenth century. The scribe does not state his name nor whence he derived his copy.

The second MS. employed in forming the text of the present work is preserved in the Bibliothèque Royale, Brussels, where it is numbered 2324-40 (pp. 76 a-85 b). It is a copy made in the year 1627 by Michael O'Clery from a MS. written by his cousin Cú-mumhan mac Tuathail í Clérig². This copy, which I call B, is ultimately derived from a MS. of the monastery of Raphoe; for the title in B runs thus on p. 76 a: Incipit Cain Adamnain ar slict senlibuir Ratha Bothæ.

There can be no doubt that this 'old book of Raphoe' was also the source from which R has finally sprung. For though R and B are not absolutely identical³, their common origin is betrayed by certain curious spellings and mistakes which all the successive scribes have faithfully preserved. Of these it will suffice to mention a few. In § 8 both MSS. have the faulty Ronat instead of Ronnat; in the same paragraph both have the unusual spelling boedh for báid; again, in § 35 the mistake noert for neort has been preserved by both. In § 39 both write atroible for atroilli, and in § 38 caicin for caingin.

The Book of Raphoe seems to have been a collection of documents relating to Adamnan; for Michael O'Clery's copy of the Canons of

² See the colophon printed infra, p. 32.

³ Apart from minor discrepancies I may mention the different arrangement of §§ 4 and 5, and the omission of the Sententia angeli (§ 33) in B.

Adamnan contained in the same Brussels MS. is also derived from it¹. Whenever the Book of Raphoe was compiled, there can be no doubt that our text was originally composed during the old-Irish period, probably in the ninth century. This is evident from the language in which the deponent, the s-subjunctive, the particle ro in its various functions, and the neuter are still in full force.

The treatise itself is a document of historical importance requiring careful study and analysis. It was my intention to deal fully in an introduction with the question of its composition, and to point out its value for the history of early Irish civilization, as well as for that of the Celtic Church at the important period of its transition to Rome. But a protracted illness and an enforced absence from home and books render this fascinating task impossible for the present; while the bulk of the book has been in print so long that I must no longer delay its publication. I will only mention that the treatise is evidently pieced together from different sources, among which the list of abbots, bishops, and kings (§ 28) is a most valuable historical document independent of the Annals. It will be noticed that it contains the names of the chief members of the Romanizing party among the Gaelic clergy of Ireland and Scotland, such as Aed of Sletty, Muirchu maccu Machthéne, Flann Febla, bishop Curetan, and also includes bishop Ecgberct, the representative of the Anglo-Roman party. The date of the promulgation of the 'Law of the Innocents' is given by the Annals of Ulster as 696, i.e. 697 A.D.² All the guarantors mentioned in our list, so far as we know the dates of their deaths, were alive in that year.

My best thanks are due, as so often before, to Mr. Whitley Stokes and Professor John Strachan for much valuable help kindly given, while a third friend is no longer among the living to receive my gratitude. To him who forwarded and followed the publication of this book with special interest I should have dedicated it, had he been spared. I now inscribe it to his memory.

KUNO MEYER.

1. Five ages before the birth of Christ, to wit, from Adam to the Flood, from the Flood to Abraham, from Abraham to David, from David to the Captivity in Babylon, from the Babylonian Captivity to the birth of Christ. During that time women were in bondage and in slavery, until Adamnan, son of Ronan, son of Tinne, son of Aed, son of Colum, son of Lugaid, son of Setne, son of Fergus, son of Conall, son of Niall, came.

2. *Cumalach*¹ was a name for women till Adamnan came to free them. And this was the cumalach, a woman for whom a hole was dug at the end of the door so that it came over her nakedness. The end of the great spit was placed upon her till the cooking of the portion was ended. After she had come out of that earth-pit she had to dip a candle four men's hands in length in² a plate of butter or lard; that candle to be on her palm until division of food and distribution of liquor and making of beds, in the houses of kings and chieftains, had ended. That woman had no share in bag nor in basket, nor in the company of the house-master; but she dwelt in a hut outside the enclosure, lest bane from sea or land should come to her chief.

3. The work which the best of women had to do, was to go to battle and battlefield, encounter and camping, fighting and hosting, wounding and slaying. On one side of her she would carry her bag of provisions, on the other her babe. Her wooden pole upon her back. Thirty feet long it was, and had at one end an iron hook, which she would thrust into the tress of some woman in the opposite battalion. Her husband behind her, carrying a fence-stake in his hand, and flogging her on to battle. For³ at that time it was the head of a woman, or her two breasts, which were taken as trophies.

² Literally, 'out of.' Cf. tumad na cainnell a geir 7 usca in carna, 'to dip the candles into the grease and tallow of the fleshmeat,' Laws, II. 252, 2.

³ The use of 'for' seems to imply that these trophies were to be put upon the stake which the man carried.

4. Now after the coming of Adamnan no ^{gentle-}woman is deprived of her testimony¹, if it be bound in righteous deeds. For a mother is a venerable treasure, a mother is a goodly treasure, the mother of saints and bishops and righteous men, an increase of the Kingdom of Heaven, a propagation on earth.

5. Adamnan suffered much hardship for your sake, O women, so that ever since Adamnan's time one half of your house is yours, and there is a place for your chair in the other half; so that your contract and your safeguard are free; and the first law made in Heaven and on earth for women is Adamnan's Law.

6. This was the beginning of the story. Once Adamnan and his mother were wending their way by Ath Drochait² in Uaithne in Ui Aido Odba in the south of Bregia. 'Come upon my back, dear mother!' saith he. 'I shall not go,' saith she. 'What is this? what ails you?' saith he. 'Because you are not a dutiful son,' saith she. 'Who is more dutiful than I am? since I put a girdle over my breast, carrying you about from place to place, keeping you from dirt³ and wet. I know of no duty which a son of man could do to his mother that I do not do for you, except the humming tune which women perform . . .⁴. Because I cannot perform that tune, I will have a sweet-sounding harp made for you, to play to you, with a strap of bronze out of it.' 'Even so,' she said. 'Your dutifulness were good; however, that is not the duty I desire, but that you should free women for me from encounter, from camping, from fighting, from hosting, from wounding, from slaying, from the bondage of the caldron.'

7. Then she went⁵ upon her son's back until they chanced to come upon a battlefield. Such was the thickness of the slaughter into which they came that the soles of one woman would touch the neck of another. Though they beheld the battlefield, they saw nothing more touching or more pitiful than the head of a woman in one place and the body in another, and her little babe upon the breasts of the corpse, a stream of milk upon one of its cheeks, and a stream of blood upon the other.

8. 'That is a touching and a pitiful sight,' said Ronnat, the mother of Adamnan, 'what I see under thy feet, my good cleric¹! Why dost thou not let me down upon the ground that I may give it my breast? However, it is long since my breasts have run dry! Nothing would be found in them. Why dost thou not prove thy clerkship for us upon yon wretched body, to see whether the Lord will resuscitate it for thee?' (Hence is the ancient saw: 'Beautiful is every pup under its dam.') At the word of his mother Adamnan turned aside, adjusted the head upon the neck, and made the sign of the cross with his staff across the breast of the woman. And the woman rose up.

9. 'Alas! O my great Lord of the elements!' said she. 'What makes you say alas?' said Adamnan. 'My being put to the sword on the battlefield and thrown into the torments of Hell. I know no one here or yonder who would do a kindness or show mercy to me save Adamnan, the Virgin Mary urging him thereto on behalf of the host of Heaven.'

10. And the woman who was there resuscitated at the word of Adamnan was Smirgat daughter of Aed Finn king of the Brefni of Connaught, wife of the king of the Luaigni of Tara. For the women of the Ui Aido Odba and of the south of Bregia and of the Luaigni of Tara had met around the ford, so that not a soul of them had come away abiding in its body, but they had fallen sole to sole.

11. 'Well now, Adamnan,' said she, 'to thee henceforward it is given to free the women of the western world. Neither drink nor food shall go into thy mouth until women have been freed by thee.' 'No living creature can be without food,' said Adamnan. 'If my eyes see it, I shall stretch out my hands for it.' 'But thine eyes shall not see and thine hands shall not reach it.'

12. Then Ronnat turned aside to Brugach son of Deda and brought a chain from him, which she put around her son's neck at the Bridge of the Swilly in Tirconnell, where the covenant had been made between his mother's and his father's kindred, even between the race of Enda and that of Lugaid², to wit, that whoever of them would break the covenant should be buried alive in the earth, but he who would fulfil it was to dwell with Adamnan in Heaven. which filled her hand. It was used for striking fire. She puts it into one of her son's cheeks, so that in it¹ he had his fill both of food and drink.

13. Then, at the end of eight months, his mother came to visit him, and she beheld the crown of his head. 'My dear son yonder,' said she, 'is like an apple upon a wave. Little is his hold on the earth, he has no prayer in Heaven². But salt water has scorched him, the gulls of the sea have dropped filth upon his head. I see women have not yet been freed by him.' 'It is the Lord that ought to be blamed, dear mother!' said he. 'For Christ's sake, change my torture!'

14. This is the change of torture that she made for him, and not many women would do so to their sons: she buried him in a stone chest at Raphoe in Tirconnell, so that worms devoured the root of his tongue, so that the slime of his head broke forth through his ears. Thereafter she took him to Carric in Chulinn³, where he stayed another eight months.

15. At the end of four years God's angels came from Heaven to converse with him. And Adamnan was lifted out of his stone chest and taken to the plain of Birr at the confines of the Ui Neill and Munster. 'Arise now out of thy hiding-place,' said an angel⁴ to Adamnan. 'I will not arise,' said Adamnan, 'until women are freed for me.' It is then the angel said: 'Omnia quae a Domino rogabis propter laborem tuum habebis.'

16. 'It shall not be in my time if it is done,' said Loingsech Bregban, a native of Fanait he was, of the race of Conall. 'An evil time when a man's sleep shall be murdered for women, that women should live, men should be slain. Put the deaf and dumb one to the sword, who asserts anything but that women shall be in everlasting bondage to the brink of Doom.'

17. These are the kings who then arose at the word of Loingsech to put Adamnan to the sword: Doelgus son of Oengus son of Dondfraech, high-king of Munster; Elodach, king of the Deisi; Cucherca, king of Ossory; Cellach the Red, king of Leinster; Irgalach grandson of Conaing, king of Bregia ; Brugach son of Deda ; Fingin Eoganach,— these were all that were there of the kings of the western world. Adamnan took no sword with him to the battle, but the Bell of Adamnan's Wrath, to wit, the little bell of Adamnan's altar-table. It is then Adamnan spoke these words :

18. 'I strike this little bell by the side of Lettir on purpose
That dapper Doelgus may not drink the ale at which Oengus has been ¹.
I shall sing my psalms to-day in the stone cave, may it not be without fame!
Lest dapper Doelgus drink the ale which is drunk ^{to the} with dregs. f. Mc 139 a
God's curse on Elodach, the chief of Femen of the Deissi,
Lest king or king's heir spring from him after him!
My humble, gentle attendant, thou armed son of the rule ², Strike a bell against Cellach of Carman, that he may be in the earth before a year's end.

19. 'Cellach the Red, king of Leinster, save the son that is in his wife's womb, shall leave no seed nor issue ; and even he, there shall be decay and ruin to his offspring unless they be obedient to me. So long as they levy my groats for me, no other tribe shall prevail over them. The palm of gentlemen from them, and the palm of encounter and of spoil. The kingship of the Ui Chellaig shall descend from them.

20. 'O lad of the Church-armour³, having come to renowned Maistiú⁴, Strike the little bell against Domnall, that his year may not be full.

'Domnall, the son of Murchad, king of Ulster, save for the son and the father, shall not leave seed nor issue, and even so, a fall shall carry off one of them, decay shall carry off the other. I take the over-kingship of Ulster from them.

21. 'My little bell of true judgements by which Irgalach is made childless,
I beseech the King of true judgements that no king descend from Irgalach.

¹ i. e. 'that Doelgus may not enjoy the kingship of his father Oengus.' This play upon the words flaith, 'kingship,' and flaith, 'ale' (i. e. laith, with prothetic f), is common in Irish storytelling. See e. g. the tale called Baile in Scáil, Zeitschrift für celt. Philologie III, p. 460, § 9 ff.

God's vengeance upon Irgalach that he be not on Bregia of true dwellings,
 May there be neither offspring nor race, may he be forsaken childless!
 The bell of truly-miraculous Adamnan has made desolate many kings,
 Each one to whom it gives battle one thing awaits — it has made them desolate.'

While it has made desolate strongholds, it has made kings desolate in defence of women, in bringing them to belief, so that their contract and their safeguard are free from the time of Adamnan until now, so that the Law of Adamnan is the first law made (for women) in Heaven and upon earth¹.

22. Adamnan did not rest satisfied² until securities and bonds were given to him for the emancipation of women. These are the securities: sun and moon, and all other elements of God; Peter, Paul, Andrew, and the other apostles; Gregory, the two Patricks, the two Ciarans, the two Cronans, the four Fintans, Mobiu, Mobi, Momædoc, Munnu, Scothine, Senan, Fechine, Duilech, Cairnech, Cieran, Cartach, Victor, bishop Curitan, bishop Maeldub, Íonan son of Saman, Foilan abbot of Imlech Ibaire, Cilline abbot of Lorrha, Colman son of Sechnusach, Eochaid abbot of Cluain Uama, the two Finnens, the son of Labraid Lan.

23. Those guarantors gave three shouts of malediction on every male who would kill a woman with his right hand or left, by a kick, or by his tongue, so that his heirs are elder and nettle and the cornrake³. The same guarantors gave three shouts of blessing on every female who would do something for the community of Adamnan, however often his reliquaries would come. A horse to be given every quarter to his reliquaries, (to be sent) to the coarb to the bath at Raphoe; but that is from queens only, with whatever every other woman is able to give.

24. Women have said and vowed that they would give one half of their household to Adamnan for having brought them out of the bondage and out of the slavery in which they had been. Adamnan accepted but a little from them, to wit, a white tunic with a black border from every penitent nun, a scruple of gold from every chieftain's wife, a linen cloth from every gentleman's wife, seven cakes from every unfree woman, a wether from every flock, the first lamb which was brought forth in a house, whether black or white, for God and for Adamnan.

25. In consideration of this small and large tribute, he to take two women to Heaven every Monday, three women every Tuesday, four women every Wednesday, five women every Thursday, seven women every Friday, twelve women every Saturday, fifty women on Sunday. In addition to this it was decided that every namesake of his mother's, whatever woman on earth would be called Ronnat, and every woman who would choose (for herself) his burial-place, should be taken to Heaven without judgement.

26. Adamnan did not rest satisfied till sureties and pledges were given into his hand for the fulfilment to him of this small and large tribute (for the reason why a guarantee is taken from a bad debtor is, in order that the guarantor may pay if the debtor do not pay): his son for a house-master, his soul for a confessor, every creature that moves about, every noble that walks the earth, every bell that is struck at the Hours are as hostages and pledges in the hand of God and Adamnan for the fulfilment of this Law.

It is then Adamnan spoke these words:

27. 'Unless ye women of this world do good to my community, the offspring ye will bear shall decay, or they shall die full of crimes. Scarcity shall fill your storehouses, the Kingdom of Heaven ye shall not obtain; ye shall not escape by niggardliness or falsehood from Adamnan of Hi.

'Adamnan of Hi will help you, O women!

Give unto your prince all the good things that are yours.'

Adamnan of Hi, beloved of all, has read the books of the ^{family} Gael¹.

28. This is the enactment of the Law of Adamnan of Hi. At Birr this enactment was enjoined on the men of Ireland and Britain as earth, that whoever fulfils this Law, both as to claim and levy and fulfilment and eric, may have a long and prosperous life, and may be honoured in the eyes of God and of men, may be exalted in Heaven and on earth.

31. The holy churches of Ireland, together with Adamnan, have also besought God with the orders of Heaven and the saints of the earth, that whoever shall break the Law of Adamnan, both laymen and clerics, whoever shall not claim it, and shall not fulfil it to the best of his power, and shall not levy it from every one, both chieftain and church,—his life may be short with suffering and dishonour, without any of their offspring attaining Heaven or earth.

32. Adamnan has also set down an order of malediction for them, to wit, a psalm for every day up to twenty days, and an apostle or a noble saint for every day to be invoked with it, to wit, 'Quare' and Peter, 'Domine quid multiplicati' and John, 'Verba mea' and Philip, 'Domine deus meus' and Bartholomew, 'Dixit insipiens' and Thomas, 'Deus, deus meus respice' and Matthew, 'Iudica me Domine innocentium'¹ and Jacob, 'Dixit iniustus' and Simon, 'Domine ne in furore' and Thaddeus, 'Dixi custodiam' and Matthias, 'Deus deorum' and Mark, 'Quid gloriaris' and Luke, 'Dixit insipiens' and Stephen, 'Exurgat deus' and Ambrose, 'Salvum me' and Gregory of Rome, 'Deus, uenerunt gentes' and Martin, 'Deus, quis similis' and old Paul, 'Deus laudem' and George. 33. Here begins the speech of the angel to Adamnan:—

After fourteen years Adamnan obtained this Law of God, and this is the cause. On Pentecost eve a holy angel of the Lord came to him, and again at Pentecost after a year, and seized a staff, and struck his side, and said to him: 'Go forth into Ireland, and make a law in it that women be not in any manner killed by men, through slaughter or any other death, either by poison, or in water, or in fire, or by any beast, or in a pit, or by dogs, but that they shall die in their lawful bed. Thou shalt establish a law in Ireland and Britain for the sake of the mother of each one, because a mother has borne each one, and for the sake of Mary mother of Jesus Christ, through whom all are. Mary besought her Son on behalf of Adamnan about this Law. For whoever slays a woman shall be condemned to a twofold punishment, that is, his right hand and his left foot shall be cut off before death, and then he shall die, and his kindred shall pay seven full *cumals*¹, and one-seventh part of the penance. If, instead of life and amputation, a fine has been imposed, the penance is fourteen years, and fourteen cumals shall be paid. But if a host has done it, every fifth man up to three hundred shall be condemned to that punishment; if few, they shall be divided into three parts. The first part of them shall be put to death by lot, hand and foot having first been cut off; the second part shall pay fourteen full cumals; the third shall be cast into exile beyond the sea, under the rule of hard regimen; for the sin is great when any one slays the mother and the sister of Christ's mother and the mother of Christ, and her who carries the spindle and who clothes every one. But he who from this day forward shall put a woman to death and does not do penance according to the Law, shall not only perish in eternity, and be cursed for God and Adamnan, but all shall be cursed that have heard it and do not curse him, and do not chastise him according to the judgement of this Law.'

This is the speech of the angel to Adamnan.

34. This is the enactment of Adamnan's Law in Ireland and Britain: exemption of the Church of God with her people² and her emblems and her sanctuaries and all her property, live and dead, and her law-abiding laymen with their lawful wives who are obedient to Adamnan and to a lawful, wise and pious confessor. The enactment of this Law of Adamnan is a perpetual law on behalf of clerics and women and innocent children until they are capable of slaying a man, and until they take their place in the tribe, and their (first) expedition is known.

35. Whoever wounds or slays a young clerical student or an innocent child under the ordinance of Adamnan's Law, eight cumals for be made to Adamnan for every woman that has been slain, whether a man has a share in it, or cattle or a hound or fire or a ditch or a building, —for everything that is made is liable in the Law, both ditch and pit and bridge and fire-place and (door-)step and pools and kilns, and every other danger¹, except the woman ^{due of}deserve it. But one-third is left to be kept. If it is a witless person, the other two-thirds shall die. The one-third is his who has the right to it.

42. Whatever violent death a woman dies, except it be (by) the hand of God, or (in consequence of) rightful lawful cohabitation, it is paid in full fines to Adamnan, both slaying and drowning and burning and poison and breaking and perishing in a quagmire and death by tame beasts and pigs and cattle. If, however, it is a first crime . . .² or on the part* of the pigs or hounds, they shall be killed at once, and half the (due) of a human hand for it; if it is not a first crime, full due is paid.

43. There shall be no ^{counterclaim} cross-case or balancing of guilt in Adamnan's Law, but each one pays for his crimes for his own hand. Every trespass which is committed in Adamnan's Law, the communities of Adamnan are entitled to a . . .³ of it, apart from women, whether it be innocents, or clerics, or any one to whom they commit it, viz. a ^{set-off} cumal forbaich to the community of Hi where seven cumals are paid, and half a cumal from seven half-cumals. Six séts on thirty séts, three séts on five séts.

44. One-eighth of everything small and great to the community of Adamnan from the slaying of clerics or innocent children. If it be a life-wound any one inflicts on a woman or a cleric or an innocent, seven half-cumals are due from him, fifteen séts upon the nearest and remoter kindred as being accomplices. Three séts for every white blow⁴, five séts for every drawing of blood, seven séts for every wound requiring a tent, a cumal for every confinement to bed, and payment of the physician besides. If it be more than that, it goes upon half-dues for killing a person. If it is a blow with the palm of the hand or with the fist, an ounce of silver (is the fine) for it. If there be a green or red mark, or a swelling, an ounce and six scruples for it. For seizing women by the hair, five wethers. If there is a fight among women with outrage (?), three wethers.

NOTES

§ 1. Five ages, &c. This division of the age of the world before Christ into five periods as against the six periods of Eusebius appears first in western literature in the writings of Augustine (De Civitate Dei, xxii. 30), whence it passed into those of Isidore, Bede, &c. See Zimmer, Nennius Vindictus, p. 181.

Ib. Adamnan, son of Ronan, &c. Adamnan's pedigree is thus versified in a poem copied by Michael O'Clery 'as seinleabhar dorcha' in the same Brussels MS. fo. 83 b (see also LL. p. 369 marg. sup.):

Adamnān rohalt in Hí mac rēil Rōnāin maic Tinni maic Aoda maic Lugdach¹ tra maic Sētna maic Fergusa².
 A máthair madchin i crī Ronnat ingen Sēgini,
 Sēgini in ordain āin dagmac Dūach maic Barrfinnāin³.

2. i cinn na cobla. I have taken cobla to stand for comla 'door.'

3. her wooden pole. Perhaps better 'her wooden spear.' See my Contributions to Irish Lexicography s. v. cess f.

4. ní gatar a forgall ar domun degmná. Doman seems used here in the sense of 'all' or 'any,' like bith.

Ib. forsither, 3. sing. of the s-subjunctive passive of fo-rigim. See Strachan, Sigmatic Future, pp. 6, 7.

Ib. is sruith máin máthair, maith máin máthair. Cf. Laws, v. 462, 1: sruith fer finntiu, sen fer findthiu.

6. Odba (Ovey), now obsolete. It was near Navan in East Meath. See the Four Masters, p. 544, and O'Dugan, Topographical Poems, p. 7, and p. iv, n. 17.

Ib. cia is goriu? Instead of goriu R has, wrongly, the superlative gorium.

Ib. concbaim = congbaim, the enclitic form of con-gabim, here used, perhaps, to imply dependence of the clause on the preceding sentence.

Ib. ní fetur goire, &c. Cf. dligid máthair míngaire, Zeitschrift, iv. p. 468, § 4.

Ib. drónaim for dorónaim, i. e. do-ro-gnám. Observe the potential function of ro with the present indicative.

² i. do cenēl Lugdach.

³ i. do cenēl Ēnna.

7. sóthe sí for sóithis sí = sóis sí (cf. sóithis, § 8). th merely serves to mark off the two syllables from each other.

8. mo chiigh = mo chích. Cf. the spelling baghaill for bachaill, § 9; aght for acht, ib.

9. a-mmo chomdiu. As to the doubling of the m after the vocative particle a see Stokes, Kuhn's Zeitschrift, xxxviii. p. 469.

10. Smir-gat, 'marrow-withe.' The name also occurs as that of one of Finn mac Cumhaill's wives. See Cath Finntrága, p. 74, 1. Cf. Bir-gat, the name of a ban-echlach of Finn's, Eg. 1782, p. 22 b, 1.

Ib. co ná deochaid anim i comatreb a colla diib. Cf. LU. 33 a, 14: céin robátar hi fus hi comaitreib a corp 7 a n-anmand.

11. maithi. I have never met this form and should have altered to maith, but that it occurs in both MSS.

Ib. ní rubai in béo cen bíad. Note the potential function of ro with the present indicative, and cf. ní rubai aní sin in nominatiuo, Sg. 209 a, 3.

Ib. día n-acet. día with subjunctive = 'if.' See Strachan, Subjunctive Mood in Irish, pp. 38, 40, 44, 48.

12. sóithi sí. Cf. the note on § 7.

Ib. Brugach, son of Deda (Dega? Daig?), not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. to be buried alive in the earth. In ancient Ireland burying alive seems to have been practised either as a punishment or as a sacrifice to the dead. See the story of fifty captives buried alive around the grave of Fiachra, the brother of Eochaid Mugmedóin (A. D. 358-366), LL. p. 190 c, 13; BB. 264 b, 25; YBL. 187 b, 30; Silva Gadelica, p. 543; Rev. Celt. xxiv. p. 184; and cf. Ir. Texte, iii. p. 417.

Ib. commaid didiu is my conjecture for the corrupt commaidedh of R and comaitiu of B. commaid=com-buith 'a being together.'

Ib. a ddorn. The dd serves to indicate the non-aspiration of d after the feminine a.

14. Carric in Chulinn, not identified.

15. túargbata. This strange form which is in both MSS. I cannot explain. One would expect túargbad. Perhaps the archetypus had túargbath. Cf. doratath, § 11.

16. Loingsech Bregbán (i. e. fair-white), son of Oengus, king of Ireland from 696-703, when he was slain by Cellach, son of Ragallach, king of Connaught, in the battle of Corann.

Ib. Olc ré i ndigéntar súan fir for (=ar) mnáib. The translation should perhaps be: 'an evil time when a man's sleep (i. e. death) will be caused for the sake of women.'

Ib. deaf and dumb, because, according to § 14, Adamnan's ears were filled with putrid matter and the root of his tongue had been eaten away.

17. Doelgus, son of Oengus, king of Munster. Nothing further seems known of him. According to § 18 he had his seat at a place called Lettir.

Ib. Elodach, king of the Deisi, who had his seat at Femen (§ 18).

Ib. Cúcherca, king of Ossory, died in 713. He became one of the signatories to the Cáin.

Ib. Cellach the Red, king of Leinster. He had his seat at Carman (§ 18).

Ib. Irgalach úa Conaing, king of Bregia. He is called king of Ciannachta in the list of guarantors. Cf. Gwynn, Dindsenchas, i. 20.

Ib. Brugach, son of Deda, has been mentioned above (§ 12).

Ib. Fingin Eoganach. Nothing seems known about him.

18. ar ben-lus, 'intentionally, on purpose,' as in Laws, i. 58, 14 (cid ar benlus dognether). Cf. ba for a iarair d'aon-loss dodheochadar 'it was solely to look for him they had come,' Betha Aodha Ruaidh, p. 10, 17. cf also ACL I 108.

Ib. Femen na nDéisi, a plain in the present baronies of Iffa and Offa, co. Tipperary.

Ib. The last half-line of the poem has two syllables too many.

19. oc ogbáil, probably leg. oc congábáil, 'keeping,' with B. Cf. o[c] cosnam in § 21.

Ib. The palm of gentlemen from them, i. e. the flower or choice of gentlemen shall spring from them. Compare a similar passage in the Book of Fenagh, p. 142.

Ib. meth ocus milled. Cf. is meth 7 milliud dond fir, ZCP. iii. 3, 3.

20. ná rup comlann a bliadain. One would expect comlán, and I have so translated. But comlann gives assonance with Domnall.

Ib. cudach may stand for cuthach 'madness.'

21. for Breg fíthrebach. Notice the dative singular Breg. The plural Brega is generally used. See my contributions s. v. Brega.

Ib. costrasta = cosa tráth sa.

22. The two Patricks, i. e. St. Patrick and Sen-Phatraic (Old Patrick), the Patraic aile of Fiacc's hymn, mentioned in the list of coarbs of Armagh as the second successor of St. Patrick in that see (!). His day is the 24th August; see the Féilire of Oengus, who calls him cóim-aite ar srotha 'the lovable tutor of our elder.' According to the Annals of Ulster he died either in 457 or 461.

Ib. The two Ciarans, i. e. Ciaran of Saigir (Seirkieran) and Ciaran of Clonmacnois (ob. A. D. 549).

Ib. The two Cronans, probably Cronan bishop of Inishmahee (ob. 643) and Cronan of Moville (ob. 650). They are among the addressees of the letter of Pope John IV. See Bede, ii. c. 19.

Ib. The four Fintans. There are so many saints of this name that I cannot say which are here referred to.

Ib. Mobú, or Bite, abbot of Inis Cumsraig (July 22).

Ib. Mobí, with the nickname Clárenech (Flat-faced), abbot of Glasnevin, ob. A. D. 545.

Ib. Momaedóc, probably the bishop of Fid-dúin in Ossory of that name (Martyrology of Donegal, May 18).

Ib. Munnu, bishop, and abbot of Cluain Eidnech in Laigis (Leix). Also called Fintain (Mart. Don., Oct. 21).

Ib. Scothíne, or Scuthín, of Tech-Scuthín in Slíab Mairge in Leinster (Mart. Don., Jan. 2).

Ib. Senán. There are numerous saints of this name.

Ib. Féchine, founder and abbot of Fobar (Fore), died about 665 (Mart. Don., Jan. 20).

Ib. Dúilech, of Clochar (Mart. Don., Nov. 17).

Ib. Cairnech, probably Cairnech of Tulen (Mart. Don., May 16).

Ib. Cianan, probably the bishop of Damliacc (Duleek), ob. A. D. 489 (Nov. 24).

Ib. Carthach, a foster-son of Ciaran of Saigir, founder of Cell Charthaig in Tironell (March 5).

Ib. Bishop Curitan, abbot of Ross Meinn (March 16).

Ib. Ionan mac Samáin, evidently the same as Iohain mac Samuel mentioned in the list of guarantors.

Ib. Foelan, abbot of Imlech Ibair. The abbot of Emly mentioned in the list is called Diblaine Elnai, while there is a Faelan of Clonfert-Brenann. Probably a scribe has blundered in § 22.

Ib. Cilline, abbot of *Lorrh*a. In the list Cilline is called abbot of Birr, while the abbot of Lorrh there mentioned is named Colman. This is correct; for Colman mac Sechnasaig, abbot of Lorrh, is mentioned in the Annals of Ulster as having died A. D. 710.

Ib. Eochaid, abbot of Cluain Uama, now Cloyne, co. Cork, is also mentioned in the list.

Ib. The two Finnens, probably Finnen of Clonard (ob. 549) and Finnen of Moville (ob. A. D. 579).

Ib. The son of Labraid Lán, not known to me.

23. from 7 nenaid 7 tradnæ. Cf. the following triad: trí comartha láthraig mallachlain .i. tromm 7 nenntóc 7 tradnai 'three signs of an accursed site, viz. elder and nettle and corncrakes,' Book of Hy Maine, fo. 101 a, 1=YBL. 416 b, 33=BB. 65 b, 47=H. 2. 17, fo. 184 d. As to the connexion between the corncrake and nettles compare the following Munster proverb: 'gach aon neach mar oiltear é, ars'an tradhnach ag dul'sa neantóg, Gael. Journ. vii. p. 88 b.

Ib. however often his reliquaries would come. This refers to the practice of carrying about the relics of a saint for the purpose of exacting the cáin or tribute due to him.

Ib. co cumunc cecha mná chena. Cf. dobér-sa mo chumang duit 'I will give thee all I can' (sic leg.), Rev. Celt. xxiii. p. 398, § 3.

24. a white tunic with a black border. From a passage in the Vision of Mac Conglinne (p. 96, l. 8) we learn that the black border had a prophylactic purpose. The woman who is to wait upon Mac Conglinne must wear 'a cloak with a black edge between its two peaks, that sorrow may not come upon her.'

25. teora ban. This use of the gen. instead of the nom. I cannot explain.

Ib. cech áine didine, literally, 'every last fast' (i. e. of the week), as cét-áin 'Wednesday,' means 'first fast.' The nominative of didine (gen. f.) is diden or deden. Cf. áin didn LB. 9 b, 47, 10 b, 3, and the following compounds: deden-rí na nAsarda 'the last king of the Assyrians,' LL. 144 a, 22; ciarb focus a dedendál 'though his last tryst (i. e. death) was near,' Salt. na Rann, l. 7374; tan doáinic a ndedenbhaidh, FM. A. D. 845, where dedenbhaidh rimes with Fedlimid. Thurneysen has shown (Zeitschr. für deutsche Wortforschung, i. p. 190) how the Old-Irish dia óine didine was in Middle-Irish gradually replaced by dia háine and lastly áine, the reason being that Wednesday ceased to be observed as a day of fasting.

Ib. a mbreith. R reads a preith, where the p is intended to mark the non-aspiration of b after the feminine possessive.

26. doadas tadas. Cf. badas (leg. doadas?) tadas, Rev. Celt., p. 414, § 28, and for aig thaig, Salt. na Rann, l. 3241.

27. for mnáib. As to this use of the dative (originally the instrumental) in apposition and its later change into a prepositional expression (in far nUliuib, LL. 112 b, 47) see Pedersen, Zeitschrift, ii. p. 379.

28. for feraib Hérenn ocus Alban. That Alba here means Britain, not Scotland, is shown by the corresponding passage in the Latin text of § 33: 'te oportet legem in Hibernia Britannique perficere.' For this meaning of Alba during the Old-Irish period see my Contributions s. v., and consider the following lines from an old poem quoted somewhere by Mac Firis:

fairenn Alban co muir nÍcht Góidil, Cruithnig, Saxain, Britt.

Ib. Fland Febla, bishop of Armagh, ob. A. D. 715.

Ib. Díbláine Elnai, abbot of Emly, perhaps the Dsbléni mentioned in the Martyrology of Donegal, Jan. 14.

Ib. Cennfáelad, abbot of Bangor, ob. A. D. 705.

Ib. Fáilbe Becc, abbot of Clonmacnois, ob. A. D. 713.

Ib. Conodar, abbot of Lismore. I believe that Lismore is a mistake for Fore (Ir. Fobar). A Conodar, abbot of Fore, died in 707 (A.U.), while Colmán son of Findbarr, mentioned below, was abbot of Lismore at the time.

Ib. Cillíne son of Luibneán, abbot of Birr, see Mart. Don., April 14.

Ib. Colmán son of Sechnasach, abbot of Lorrha, ob. A. D. 710.

Ib. Eochaid, abbot of Cloyne, co. Cork. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Forandán, abbot of Kildare, ob. A. D. 698.

Ib. Suadbar, abbot of Inis Deimle (or Daimle), now 'Little Island' in the Suir near Waterford. A bishop Soadbar is mentioned in the Martyrology of Donegal, p. 181 (July 26).

Ib. Díbléne, abbot of Tír-dá-glass. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Mochonnui, abbot of Derry, mentioned in the Martyrology of Donegal under May 15, as one of the guarantors of Adamnan's Law. He is called Da Chonda Daire by Tigernach. He died in 706.

Ib. Oisíne son of Glas, abbot of Clonfertmulloe. This is evidently Osséni filius Galluist ab Clúana maic Nóis, whose death Tigernach records under the year 706.

Ib. Mancháine, abbot of Leithglenn, now Leighlin, ob. A. D. 726.

Ib. Moacru, perhaps identical with Moacru mac Senáin mentioned in the Book of Leinster, p. 350 a. See also the Mart. Don., Jan. 8.

Ib. Mobeóc of Ard. This is evidently Mophiôcc ó Ard Camrois for brú Locha Carman (Garman, Féil.) i nUíbh Ceinnscaleigh of the Mart. Don., Dec. 16 = Féil. p. clxxxii.

Ib. Murchu, abbot of Balla (in the barony of Clanmorris, co. Mayo), probably the immediate successor of Cronan Balnae, who died in 692 (F.M.).

Ib. Moling Lúachra, ob. A. D. 696.

Ib. Mend Maiche, abbot of Ferns. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Colcu son of Moenach, abbot of Lusk, ob. A. D. 702.

Ib. Bishop Ceti, evidently Coeddi, bishop of Iona, who died A. D. 712 (A.U.). See the Mart. Don. p. 282.

Ib. Bishop Curetan, abbot of Ross Meinn or Ross Maic Bairned (Gorman and Mart. Don., March 16). Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Bishop Conamail son of Conan (or Cano, A.U.), ob. A. D. 705.

Ib. Colmán grandson of Orc, abbot of Clonard, ob. A. D. 701.

Ib. Aed, bishop of Sletty, called 'anchorita' in the Annals of Ulster, ob. A. D. 700. He is the Aidus Slettiensis episcopus mentioned in Tirechán's notes.

Ib. Colmán son of Findbarr, abbot of Lismore, ob. A. D. 703.

Ib. Cardide of Ross Mór (in the barony of Leitrim, co. Galway). Not mentioned in the Annals or Martyrologies.

Ib. Togialloc grandson of Luan, the Wise. Not mentioned in the Annals or Martyrologies.

Ib. Bishop Ichbricht. This is the well-known Anglian ecclesiastic Eggerbert, who brought the monks of Iona to paschal conformity (see Bede, ii. c. 11). He died in 729.

Ib. Of Feradach grandson of Arthur, Fáelchú son of Máelrubai, Fáelan of Clonfert-Brenann, Dibhéne son of Fili, and Mosacra nothing is known either from the Annals or Martyrologies.

Ib. Máelcoisni son of Conall. Though I have preferred the reading of B (mac Conaill) to that of R (mac dall), I now see from a list of saints in the Book of Leinster, p. 368 f, that the latter is correct. There I find Maelcoisne mac dall, i. e. 'M. the Blind Boy.' Nothing is known about him from the Annals or Martyrologies.

Ib. Murchú maccuí Machthéine. This is the well-known writer of a portion of St. Patrick's memoirs in the Book of Armagh.

Ib. Bishop Máeldub, Ioain (i. e. Johannes) of the Wisdom, son of the Smith, and Ioain son of Samuel are not mentioned elsewhere.

Ib. Fáelán grandson of Silne, ob. A. D. 711.

Ib. Loingsech son of Oengus, king of Ireland. See the note on § 16.

Ib. Congalach son of Fergus, king of Tirconnell. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Fland Find son of Máeltuile, king of Tyrone. He died in 700.

Ib. Conchobur son of Máeldúin, king of Cinel-Coirpri (a sept in the barony of Granard, co. Longford). He was slain in 706.

Ib. Eterscéil son of Máeluma, king of Munster. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Cúdnaisc son of Cellach, king of East Munster. Not mentioned in the Annals, unless this was the Cúdnaisc slain in 709 in the battle of Mag Elni (AU).

Ib. Cúcherca, king of Ossory, died in 713.

Ib. Congal son of Suidne, king of the Déisi (of Bregia). He is called Conall in the Annals of Ulster, A. D. 701, in which year he was killed.

Ib. Eoganán son of Crundmál, king of the Ui Fidgenti (a sept in the barony of Coshma, co. Limerick). He was probably the immediate predecessor of Conall son of Donennach, king of the Ui Fidgenti, who died in 701.

Ib. Andelaitb, king of the northern Déisi. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Elodach son of Dúnlang, king of Desmond. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Ailill son of Cú-cen-máthair, king of Mag Féne. He is called 'rex Muman' in the Annals of Ulster. Died in 701.

Ib. Fiacha Cosalach (i. e. the swift-footed), king of the Picts, i. e. the Irish Picts of Dálaraide. He is mentioned in the list of Dalaraidian kings in the Book of Leinster (p. 41e) as Fiachra Cossalach.

Ib. Bécc Boirchi (of Boirche), king of Ulster, died in 718.

Ib. Niall son of Cernach (Sotal, i. e. the Proud), king of Bregmag, slain in 701.

Ib. Cellach son of Gerthide, king of Diabal-Laigen. This is the king of Leinster called Cellach Derg in §§ 18 and 19. He is called Cellach mac Gerthid in the list of Leinster kings in the Book of Leinster (p. 39 b), Cellach Cúalann rex Lagen in the Annals of Ulster (A. D. 714), Cellach Cúalann mac Gerrthide ri Laigen by the Four Masters (A. D. 713). He died in 715.

Ib. Condálach son of Conaing, king of Corco Dubne (now the barony of Corkaguiney, co. Kerry). The death of a person of that name is mentioned in the Annals of Ulster A. D. 717, but he is called king of the Ui Cremthainn, a sept in the barony of Slane, co. Meath.

Ib. Corpri son of Cúcholuimb, king of the Ui Cennselaig (in South Leinster) was slain in 709. The Annals of Ulster A. D. 708 call him, wrongly, Cúcholuinn, while A. D. 683 the name is rightly given.

Ib. Congal grandson of Mrachaide. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Conall son of Doinennach, king of the Ui Fidgenti, died in 701.

Ib. Cellach son of Ragallach, king of Connaught. He is called 'Cellach Locha Cime' in the Annals of Ulster A. D. 703. He died in 705 'post clericatum.' Cf. LL. p. 41 a: [Ce]llach mac Rogellaig .uii. [annos]. in clericatu obiit.

Ib. Dlúthach son of Fidchellach, king of the Ui Maine (a sept in Galway and Roscommon). He was burnt to death in 712 (AU.).

Ib. Dúnchad, king of the Ui Amalgaid (now the barony of Tirawley, co. Mayo), and of the Ui Fiachrach Murisc (a sept in the barony of Murrisk, co. Mayo). Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Muirges son of Máeldúin. He was king of the Cenél-Coirpri (a sept in the barony of Granard, co. Longford), and died in 698.

Ib. Macnía, king of Ard of the Ui Echach (a district in the baronies of Upper and Lower Iveagh, co. Down), died in 702.

Ib. Murchad of Meath. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Colmán son of Rechtabra, king of Ferns (co. Wexford). Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Máelfothartaig son of Máeldub. He was king of the Airgialla, and died in 697.

Ib. Dub-díberc, probably the son of Dungal, who fell in the battle of Corann in 703. See Tig. A. D. 702. Three Fragments, p. 106.

Ib. Mane son of Niall son of Cernach Sotal, slain in battle A. D. 712.

Ib. Maelcáich son of Noindenach. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Erthuile grandson of Crundmál. He was expelled from the kingship of the Cinel-Eogain and went to Britain in 700 (AU.).

Ib. Aed of Odba, killed in 701 (AU.).

Ib. Echuid son of Dúnchad, king of the Déisi. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Aed son of Dlúthach, king of the Fir Cul (now the barony of Kells, co. Meath), fell in the battle of Kells, A. D. 718.

Ib. Flaithnía son of Fergal. Not mentioned in the Annals.

Ib. Fiannamail grandson of Dúnchad. He was king of the Irish Dálriata, and died A. D. 700.

Ib. Feradach grandson of Ciarán. This was perhaps the son of Maeldúin, king of Cinel Laegairi (a sept seated around Trim, co. Meath), who was slain in 704 (AU.).

Ib. Fedlimid grandson of Fergus. He is called son of Fergus son of Aedan in AU. Died in 701.

Ib. Fallomain, king of the Ui Tuirtri, a sept in co. Antrim. Not mentioned in the Annals, nor in the Genelach rígh húa Turtri, LL. p. 338 d.

Ib. Fergus Forchraid, slain in the battle of Corann in 703.

Ib. *Fogartach*¹. This is probably the son of Niall and grandson of Cernach Sotal, who later became king of Ireland, and was slain in the battle of Cenn-Delgden in 724.

Ib. Garbán, king of Meath. He died in 702.

Ib. Eochu Lemna, king of the Ui Cremthainm (a sept in the barony of Slane, co. Meath). He fell in the battle of Corann in 703 (Three Fragments, p. 107).

Ib. Eochu grandson of Domnall, king of the []. I cannot supply the gap. 'Echu nepos Domnaill iugulatus est,' AU. 697.

Ib. Conall Grant, king of southern Bregia, slain in 718.

Ib. Túathal grandson of Dúnchad, king of the Ui Chonaill Gabra. This was perhaps the king of that sept slain in the battle of Corann in 703. See AU. i. p. 152, n. 1.

Ib. Toicthech son of Cennfélad, king of Luigni (now the barony of Leyny, co. Sligo). In the Annals of Ulster and in the Genelach Luigni Connacht (LL. pp. 338 h), he is called Taiclech or Taichlech¹. He died in 734.

¹ In the text the name Fogartach has by an oversight not been separated from that of Fergus Forchraid.

Ib. Bodbchath, king of Luigni (now the barony of Lune, co. Meath). He is called Bodbchad Mide in the Annals of Ulster, Bodbchar mac Diarmata Ruanaid in Three Fragments, p. 110. He was slain in the battle of Cloenad A. D. 704.

Ib. Irgalach grandson of Conaing, king of Ciannacht. He was slain by Britons in Inis mac Nesson, A. D. 702 (AU.).

Ib. Bruide son of Derile, king of the Pict-folk, i. e. of the Scottish Picts. He died A. D. 706.

29. toicitchetar, 3. plur. perf. of do-tongim, with inserted perfective particle -com-. Cf. datongal, § 46; ducuittig, Wb. 33 d, 10.

Ib. ní gata. This emendation of ní catta (cata) of the MSS. is due to Professor Strachan.

30. arim inducbude; 31, arimm garit a sáegul. Cf. Wb. 25 a, 9: arim tairis-mech, 'that it may be stable.'

31. ná-da-síá, ná-da-comalnathar, ná-timarr, 3. sing. subj. of saigim, comalnur, do-immurc.

Ib. cen athgabáil nime ná talman úadib. Cf. LL. 354 e: ná ricfa a anim nem 7 ná bíad a athgabáil i talmain.

32. Up to twenty days. Nineteen psalms only are enumerated. As we see from the versified arrangement in Hibernica Minora, p. 45, 'Deus ultionum' 7 Anton should be inserted after Senpól.

Ib. Old Paul, i. e. Paul the Hermit.

33. iactatur in peregrinationem trans mare sub regula regiminis duri. Cf. § 45. On the punishment of sending adrift on the sea, see Stokes, Trip. Life, p. clxxiv. Among the unpublished legal tracts in H. 3. 18. I find the following (p. 227 a): Mad mac scrine .i. mac so dorinne[d] ri coibdelaig ina richt budein 7 is ed dlegair a cur i scrin lethair ar muir in eret bus léir gelsciath ar muir, i. e. 'If it be a "mac scríne," that is, a boy who has been begotten upon a kinswoman in her own guise (i. e. without mistaking her for another) he shall be put in a leathern box upon the sea as far as a white shield is visible.' And again (ib.): Mad fer a cliab áen[s]luaisti [.i.] duine seo curthir a cliab áen[s]luaiste amach for muir ina cintaib anfoit no inndethberi torbaid in airet is léir geilsciath for muir, lón menaidh[ch]e aenaidche lais 7 genn orda tri ndornd ina lám ac dingbáil aithide in mara de, i. e. 'If it be a man in a wicker-boat of one paddle, that is, a man who is put in a wicker-boat of one paddle out upon the sea for his crimes of inadvertence or unnecessary profit (?), as far as a white shield is visible upon the sea, store of meal and water for one night with him, and a wedge of a sledge-hammer (?) of three fists (i. e. three fists long) in his hand for keeping off the ^{creatures}beasts of the sea.' Cf. also Laws, i. 14, 10; ib., 204, 22.

34. inbuiithi. Cf. O'Mulconry's Glossary, 311: dibell .i. ní inbuiithi in bello (sic leg.). Ib., 300: .i. ní buithe in bello. Here the word is taken as consisting of the prefix in and buiithi, the participle of necessity of bíu, 'I am.'

35. ar-id-accai, nach-id-anaig, 3. pers. sing. pres. ind. of ar-accim, 'I look on,' and angim, 'I save,' with infixed neuter pronoun -id. Cf. Laws, iv. 362, 24: cach duine aridsisither 7 nachidnanaig cach nirt cach folud (sic leg.).

Ib. arra cuir, perhaps 'payment of a security.' Cf. Laws, v. 454, 15: arra cuir ó mnái eisinmric.

36. a foltmaissi. Here a stands for i. Cf. trían díre ina tairdbe, Laws, iv. 168, 25. The exact meaning of foltmaise is not known to me. Atkinson, Laws Gloss. s. v., conjectures 'tonsure.'

Ib. fethaltæ seems miswritten for fethaldæ, a derivative from fethal, 'emblem.' See Wi. s. v., and compare the following note in Rawlinson B. 512, fol. 44 b: Cūic prímfethail cecha ecalsa rohordaiged la rīg Muman .i. Finnguine 7 la Cathal co maithib Muman umpa .i. bachall 7 menistir 7 cros 7 cloc 7 catur .i. soiscēla. 'Five chief emblems of every church were ordered by the king of Munster, even Finguine, and by Cathal, with the nobles of Munster around them, viz. staff and service-set and cross and bell and a book of the gospels.'

37. dongoat, 3. pers. plur. of the pres. ind. do-goim, 'I choose,' with infixed relative -n-.

38. gell a ochtaib. I take ochtaib to be the dat. plur. of ucht, but my rendering of a ochtaib by 'at once' is a mere conjecture.

39. as meise cacha saigtheche. This is very obscure. meise might be the participle or part. of necessity of midiur, 'I judge.' saigtheche seems a fem. abstract from saigthech, 'suable.'

41. na banscál. Notice the O. Ir. neuter form of nach with banscál, while in § 45 and elsewhere the feminine dative banscáil is used.

Ib. eirriithi, participium necessitatis of as-renim.

Ib. céim, literally 'step,' here perhaps rather means 'a stile,' like W. camfa.

42. Mád célchin, &c. Both MSS. are corrupt here. Though I can make nothing of a folath (foluth), I regard mád célchin as a certain emendation, in view of mani célchin later on.

43. na foachla fofechar. foachla (apparently a neuter) seems a byform of fuachtain f. 'injury, damage' (see the Laws Gloss. s. v., and Zeitschr., iii. 3, 1: dorónsaid fuachtain frim).

44. innindrig, 'a person whose wound requires a tent.' See Laws Gloss. s. v. indindrach (a vox nihili).

Ib. is for lethstachu gonae duine dotléit. Cf. dotléit for, 'touches upon,' Wb. 2 a, 3; Sg. 108 a, 3. tét for a naidm, Laws, iv. 306, 20. dotléit aitare ar fer feras in fuil, ib., 302, 1.

Ib. co sár-tairbert. Here the meaning of tairbert, the verb-noun of do-airberim, is not clear to me. It sometimes means 'vigour,' as in Dinds., 109: nach tairbert dobered fuirri. But as it also means 'parturition, birth' (e. g. Zeitschr., iii. 233), perhaps sártairbert refers to miscarriage brought about by violence.

45. for murchreth should probably be altered into for murchreich. Cf. regait ind bic diar n-inchaib-ne murcreich, YBL. p. 129 b.

Ib. long menathcha. The word menathach or menadach is derived from min, 'flour,' and denoted a mixture of meal and butter. According to a text published in Archiv, ii. p. 136, such a mixture was permitted in penance as a substitute for water. The word was borrowed by the Norse as minnpak, n. Cf. Islandiga sögur I, 34^o: pá tóku þrælanir írsku þat ráð at knoða saman mjöl ok smjör ok kölluðu þat úþorstlátt; þeir nefndu þat minnpak.

46. dune-táile, better dune-táide, literally 'man-stealth,' i. e. murder with subsequent concealment of the body. Cf. the Laws Glossary and De Arreis, § 5 (Rev. Celt., xv. p. 493), where I have wrongly rendered the word.

Ib. foreccatar, 3. plur. pres. ind. pass. of fo-riccim, 'I find,' not for-icim, as Professor Atkinson has in the Glossary to the Laws.

47. mani eirre, 3. sing. subj. of as-renim.

Ib. derbfine, i. e. the grandfather, the paternal uncle, the nephew and the first cousin of a person. See D'Arbois de Jubainville, Étude sur le Droit Celtique, i. p. 186.

48. bíat, contracted from bíathat. Cf. mani bíathat in the next sentence where B has mani bíat.

Ib. lind bás. I conjecture lín mbás, lit. 'the number which it is,' i. e. 'whatever number they are.'

Ib. tobó, 3. sing. fut. of do-bongim. See Strachan, Sigmatic Future, p. 8. With the whole paragraph compare Aisl. Maic Conglinne, p. 45, 24: rfg do aithne na fíach, briugaid do imfulang do chaithem bíd 7 lenna 7 lessaigthe léo céin bed ic tobach m' fíach.

Ib. fo maith cáich, leg. fo miad cáich, 'according to the rank of every one.'

49. frimtobach, perhaps leg. fri tobach.

Ib. tuinidech, a derivative from tunide, the verb-noun of do-nethim, as air-naide is the verb-noun of ar-nethim. Tunide seems to mean 'the act of taking or being in possession, settled, stationary, or in a certain position.' See the Glossary to the Laws s. v., and cf. the following passages:—Ir. T. iii. 200, 25: conid leis féin tuinithi in chlaidib 7 a tharrachtu (sic leg.). YBL. 106 b, 19: sínset im tuinithi tend | indse airegda Héirend. LL. 345 d: dligid tairec tunide. LL. 290 b, 8: bói issin tunide sin. LU. 71 b, 6: conaccassa iarom isin tunidi sin ('in that position'). LL. 189 b: Tunide Tige Burig (the title of a story). TTr. 973: do thúathaib tunide Troianna. MR. 150, 3: tuirthi tenna troma tréna tuinide turcbála tamnaighthi.

Ib. a compert, perhaps leg. a compirt (gen. sing.).

50. mád lám fo étach dia meblugud. Cf. O'Dav., p. 104 s. v. mem: a meblugud .i. ueste eleuata (sic leg.).

51. aire désa, 'a chief of land,' the first rank in the flaith-grade. désa is the gen. of dés, f. 'land,' of which I have the following examples: dub-dés is dub-tuinne, LL. 147 a, 50; dat. fon deis, SR. 7856.

Ib. muirí, gen. muirech, dat. acc. muirig, 'a lord.'

Aed Buide i mbruigin cia be muiri húa mádach Maine. Harl. 5280, 49 b.

nom. pl. atát in muirig fo tráig do ruirig nimi nóebnáir. SR. 3925.

See also the Laws Gloss. s. v.

52. ellam, 'dowry.' Cf. ellam rogáid ben Géide | for a céile rocúala, H. 3, 18, p. 533. Corm. Tr., p. 67, and O'Cl. s. v.
